The Two Charity Boys.

'Daniel, I tell you the best thing we can do is to adopt some little boy, and bring him up as our own. Here we are, you and me, in Missoury, hundreds of miles from kith or kin, among persons as was a time ago unknown to us. We've worked and scratched and saved until we've as nice a home as the whole of Clinton holds. Now, then, Daniel, when we get old and stiff, who's there to take care of it? Do you remember the day when we came here from Fulton? I reckon you haven't forgot it no more than I. We drove that pair of mules you bought of Joe Smith. They were the balkiest critters anyone ever drove. Them were the only horses we had then, and everything else was packed in one load. Daniel wasn't it in our lower creek them 'ere mules kept us a whole night?'

'No, it was in Ford's creek, about a mile from here,' answered Daniel. 'You remember, Keziah, that you kept fussing and worrying all the way, for fear we wouldd't be home before night. Just before we got to that creek I told you we'd be home in less than an hour. I didn't calculate then on spending the night there, though. When we was about half way across, them 'ere mules stopped, and not a peg did they move till morning.'

'Yes, Daniel, a madder man than you couldn't be found, just then. You sorter cooled down after a while, and went to sleep. Well, we started as soon as the mules was willing, and when we got to our log cabin, way back in the woods, I broke down and cried. This was the lonesomest, dreariest place anybody ever made a home out of. You talked kind of cheering to me then, Daniel, and I soon took heart again. We started out hand to hand. Now at the end of a score years we can look around on well-fenced fields and a handsome house and barn, all paid for except the mortgage you're to pay to-morrow. Now, Daniel, it ain't more than just to show our good feelings to the Lord in some way, knowing that he helped us to all this. He has promised to reward us for anything we do to His Lambs, meaning the children that overflows our asylums. Now, Daniel Allen, don't you think you'd better bring home one or two little orphans with you to-morrow?'

'Yes, Keziah, I think I will. Anyway, I'll go down and see them. There, wife, the clock is striking nine. Time to go to bed. I'll be sure to bring you a pet or two to morrow night.'

Five o'clock the next morning found Daniel Allen behind a pair of splendid bays, on his way to Clintonville. The good old farmer felt at peace with himself and all the world. His last payment was due to-day, and the money to pay it was securely packed in his montrous wallet. Henceforth the broad fields and comfortable home were to be all his; he could raise his hand and say,—

'I owe no man a dollar.'

'During the time which elapsed ere he reached the city Mr. Allen thought over every possible result of his wife's proposition. His heart longed for the sound of children's voices and laughter resounding through his home, driving away the gloom there and bringing sunshine instead.

But he knew that Keziah's warm, motherly heart would be bound up in whatever child she should adopt, and that she would gratify its every thought if possible. He finally concluded that he would take home two little boys, in order that Keziah and he might have one apiece.

When his business at the bank was finished, he started for the 'Lowood' orphan home. This was a large charitable institution for boys, under the immediate supervision of a friend named Goodly. This gentleman was very much pleased with the object of Daniel's visit, and immediately summoned the boys to his presence, when the farmer picked out the two he wished to adopt. The necessary papers were made out, and Daniel took his departure with the little boys, henceforth to be known as Bertie and Harry Allen. Both of them were bright, handsome children. Bertie was a shy, blue-eyed child of six, Harry a bold, dark laddie of ten years.

The boys were so very anxious to hear about their future home that Mr. Allen had to tell many times about the barn full of hay and straw to play on, and the orchard with the creek running through it. They listened with delight to a description of Flora, the black colt that would shake hands with Mr. Allen. They were glad to hear of the swing in the woods beyond the daisy-strewn meadow. But when Daniel spoke of the little woman at home who was going to be a kind, fond mother to them, they burst into tears of joy. The description exceeded anything they had ever imagined.

They had both spent most of their previous lives behind the high walls of the institution, and under the rigid discipline of a master. They knew of no other life, expected no different future. It was no wonder then that the bright, pleasant home which loomed up before them so suddenly was thought to be a dream.

'Harry,' said little Bertie, 'I can't believe that we are going to live in such a home. I think we must have died, and that there is an angel taking us to heaven. Don't you think so Harry?'

Mr. Allen laughed heartily at this idea. He told Bertie that he was most there then, for the house yonder among the trees was his home.

Very soon they were drawn up before the porch, where they found Keziah impatiently waiting their arrival. She came out to meet them, kissed both little boys, and half carried them into the house.

After supper was over, Mrs. Allen took Bertie on her lap, drew Harry's chair close to her own, and asked her husband to tell her about his visit to the city. Mr. Allen did so, not forgetting to mention that he was taken for an angel for once in his life, anyway.

The children's bedtime soon arrived, and Mrs. Allen took them to a cozy room above. She tucked them carefully under the snowy covers, and gave each a good-night kiss. When she went below again she found Daniel nodding over the fire.

'Now, Daniel Allen, I feel as though I had something to live for. I do think Bertie is a darling. I don't like Harry at all. Them big black eyes look too crafty for a child of his years.'

'That's the reason I brought two, Keziah, so you and me could have one apiece. You can have Bertie. Under my directions Harry'll make a fine boy, mind what I tell you. If you want Bertie the same, I'd advise you not to pet him too much,' returned her husband.

The boys were up early, and before night there were not many inches of the farm that they had not traveled. They found everything quite as nice as Daniel had pictured it to be, and passed the day out of doors.

Harry soon noticed that Bertie was Mrs. Allen's favorite, and there arose in his passionate heart a strong dislike for his brother. He did not attempt to drive it out. He let it take root and grow until his whole soul was filled with a bitter hatred of innocent Bertie.

They had not been at the farm a year before Harry commenced to abuse the child. He was very careful in his conduct before Mr. and Mrs. Allen, consequently they both regarded him with great pride and affection. Mrs. Allen often told Daniel that Harry would make more of a mark in the world than Bertie, who was of an easy, gentle disposition. They did not know that he treated Bertie as he did. The child had such a fear of Harry that he dared not complain of his ill treatment to any one.

To add to his troubles, Harry, who was decidedly Mr. Allen's favorite, contrived to shake the farmer's confidence in him by representing that he was not always truthful and honest. Several times he threw his own misdemeanors upon Bertie's shoulders, and the child dared not tell the truth for fear of the punishment he knew his cowardly enemy would inflict. As a natural consequence, Mr. Allen's treatment of the poor little victim of circumstances was stern and hard, Keziah being his only friend. She never lost faith in her pet.

For years this cruel course was continued, then its desired object was accomplished.

Bertie was just fifteen when he made up his mind that he would run away—that he could not live in this atmosphere of injustice another day. So one night he tied a few things in a kerchief and took a sorrowful departure from the only home he had ever known. Not unperceived, as he had supposed, however. Every movement was viewed by Harry with the utmost satisfaction.

Mrs. Allen wondered much, when breakfast was over, and Bertie who was an early riser, did not appear. After a time, thinking that he might be ill, she went up to his room, and found that the bed had not been slept in.

She looked around, but found no clew to his whereabouts. She immediately called Daniel and Harry, and a thorough search was commenced. Their efforts were, however, in vain. Bertie had disappeared as completely as if the ground had opened and swallowed him.

Mrs. Allen was nearly heart-broken at the loss of her boy. Daniel, too, missed that sad, patient face from the fireside, and did all that he could to find him.

'Keziah,' said Daniel, a few days after Bertie's disappearance, 'have you been to my wallet lately? Thar's fifteen dollars gone somewhar.'

'Lor' no, Daniel, I never did such a thing. When did you miss the money?'

'Only this mornin', but it might have been gone afore. The fust money I ever had took. too.'

'Father,' said Harry, 'maybe Bertie took it. It seems as though we would have found him before if he had been without money.'

'No, no, Harry,'' said Mrs. Allen, quickly; 'do not hint such a thing again. That poor dear boy'd lose a hand, sooner'n touch a cent as didn't belong to him.'

'Well,' said Daniel, after a long pause, 'the money's gone, and the more I think on't, the more I think he took it. No one else could have took it, wife. I don't begrudge the money to the boy. I would ha g'in him more, if he wanted it; but if them's his principles, I'm glad he's gone.'

Mrs. Allen remonstrated with her husband on the injustice of the accusation. In her own mind she felt sure that she knew the thief. She dared not mention it to Daniel, however, for he would hear nothing against Harry.

A year wore away, and still no tidings of Bertie reached the farm. Harry had gained his point in driving him away. He was now sole manager of all Mr. Allen's business. His word was law with Daniel, but not with Keziah. She could hardly tolerate him, feeling perfectly sure that he had then hardened the old man's heart against him.

Years rolled by. The hand of age commenced to stamp his indelible marks on Mr. and Mrs. Allen. Keziah could no longer attend to the housework, so a trusty girl was engaged to take charge of the kitchen. The old people felt that they could now enjoy a quiet, happy old age together after their years of toil.

Such was not to be the case. Mrs. Allen was taken very ill. Noted physicians were summoned from all parts, but their skill was unavailing. One bright, sunny day in early autumn they laid her away forever. She who had been a fond mother to Bertie was gone. He was indeed an orphan now.

A short time after this sad event, Mr. Allen had a desirable offer made him for part of his farm. He had long been thinking of selling, in order to dispense with hired help. He also felt that the sands of life were running out and the money thus realized would make him comfortable while he lived. He finally conclued the bargain, and received most of the money for his land at once.

It was impossible for him to deposit the money in the bank the day he received it. Although he felt that it was very unsafe to keep so much cash in the house over night, he could not go to the city until the next day.

The hired girl spoke of spending the night with friends, so Daniel supposed he and Harry would be sole inmates of the house. When bedtime came, the old man placed the package of money under his pillow and retired to rest.

Some time during the night he was dimly conscious of a cloth being pressed tightly against his nostrils. He knew no more until he felt somebody shaking him violently, and calling on him to awaken. He found standing at his bedside his housekeeper and three men, a neighbor and his two sons.

'Poor man!' said Lizzie. 'Look quickly and see if your money is where you put it. You have been robbed by your beloved son, Harry.'

'Don't say Harry took it girl! You will kill me if you do. Call him quickly, and we will find the robbers. Maybe you're mistaken. I'll look myself and see.'

He raised his pillow and found—nothing. Harry entered the room at this crisis, and asked hurriedly if the money were gone.

'Harry,' said Daniel, 'you have stung the heart that loved you. Lizzie saw and heard all. Tell us about it, girl.'

Mr. Leeds, the neighbor, was a justice of the peace. He now proceeded to arrest Harry, who stoutly protested his innocence.

'I did not go over to Mr. Leeds', as I spoke of doing,' said Lizzie. 'Being very tired, I went right to bed, but not to sleep. I kept thinking of the danger the place was in on account of that money. Twelve o'clock found me wide awake. Soon after this I thought I heard voices in the garden. I rose and went to my window. Fortunately it was open, and just then the moon came from under a cloud. I looked out, and not three feet from under my window stood Harry Allen and a strange man. I heard Harry say, 'The coast is clear, old fellow; you wait here and I'll bring out the bag.' I stepped out into the hall and heard him enter Mr. Allen's room. In about fifteen minutes he came out and went out doors. As soon as I dared, I went out the back way and ran over to Mr. Leeds' and woke them up.'

By this time Harry was aware that it was useless to deny his guilt. He begged Daniel to have mercy on him, and he would restore the money.

'Harry,' said Mr. Allen, who was sternly just, 'you must stand your trial. If the judge and jury have mercy on you, all right. I have none of it.'

Harry was lodged in jail, there to await his trial. A lawyer from St. Louis was engaged for him, by name, Robert Dobson. Although a young man he was said to be the smartest lawyer in the State.

The day of the trial came at last. The court room was crowded. Mr. Leeds and the girl, Lizzie, were the main witnesses. Their evidence was strong enough to convict the prisoner. Everything was proven against Harry. Presently, his lawyer arose to make his plea. Something in that resolute face and in those firm, quiet tones made Daniel look more closely at Robert Dobson. After a long, piercing look he threw up his hands, and, with the cry of 'Bertie!' fell fainting.

As soon as he had been removed, the lawyer continued his eloquent appeal. So effectual were his words that Harry received only two years in the penitentiary.

Daniel was right. It was Bertie who pleaded Harry's cause so warmly. He had remembered well the christian precept: "forgive, if you would be forgiven."

It is impossible to say how proud and happy Daniel felt when Keziah's lost boy was restored to him in the rich and noted Robert Dobson. The errors of the past were forgiven and forgotten by the young man, who only remembered that Daniel had once been kind to him. And from that time to the day of the old man's death, he was to him a faithful and devoted son.

How Tweed Escaped.

The account of the extravagant price paid for human hair to Mr. Dibblee recalls to the mind of that gentleman an incident of Tweed's escape from Ludlow street jail. Mr. Dibblee had had a wig of superior quality and beauty made to cover the temporary baldness of his son, whose head had just been shaved. The son failed to go for the wig at the hour agreed upon, and the father kept his place of business open later than usual, waiting for the bald delinquent. Suddenly an excited man rushed into the store, exclaiming:

"Mr. Dibblee, have you a wig that will about fit me?"

"Certainly; what color do you want?"

"Oh, any kind. Show me one, quick!"

Mr. Dibblee took the wig waiting for his son, and handed it to his impatient customer. He hastily tried it on, inquired the price, paid a reckless amount, seized the wig, and went away in great haste.

That night the wily Tweed disappeared. The next day New York was all agog with amazement at his bold flight. When it was discovered that he had fled in disguise, Mr. Dibblee thoughtfull put two and two together. He soon after met one of the persons who had been accused of assisting in the flight, and, to verify his suspicion, said to him:

"So you succeeded in getting the old man off?"

'Yes; but we should not have done it if it had not been for your wig."—New York World.

General Grant's Horses.

General Grant was particularly proud and fond of his stud of horses. His war charger was an especial favorite. He took great delight in exhibiting his horses to his friends with whom he was intimate. Once at his stables with a friend he said: "Perhaps you would like to see the horse I rode during all the campaigns I commanded?" The animal was ordered to be brought out. The gentleman was surprised to find the horse no larger than a lady's palfrey—small, slender, agile-limbed, black as a coal, intelligent, mild, an eye like a hawk, and a lick on the mane for all the world like a boy's cowlick. It was such an animal as women and children would make into a family pet. The gentleman pronounced the animal a beauty but expressed a doubt as to its endurance. "Endurance!" said the general, "this animal exceeds in endurance any horse-flesh I ever saw. I have taken him out at daylight and kept in the saddle till dark, and he came in as fresh when I dismounted as when we started in the morning. There isn't gold in America to buy him. He is an imported horse of fine breed and was once on Jeff Davis's plantation." This was just before Davis was caught, and the visitor said, "I presume you would exchange the horse for Jeff Davis." "You have said it," exclaimed Grant, "I would exchange him for his old master, but for nothing else in the world."

THE value of the pig iron produced in this country last year was $73,000,000, a sum nearly as great as the combined value of the gold and silver products.

Wine with a History.

Twelve Precious Bottles That Once Came Across the Atlantic.

J. A. Murray, of Butte, Montana, is the possessor of twelve bottles of wine with a history. The earliest known of this wine is that it was found in a subterranean vault inside a sealed stone receptacle, in a Jesuistical monastery, that was demolished during a local feud among religious fanatics. It so happened that the eye of an epicurean fell upon it and he secured it as the most valuable of the treasures, and carried it into Poland; presented it to the crown, for which he was rewarded by the highest honors and titles that could be conferred upon an ordinary citizen. At the marriage of the Princess Decherniz of Poland to the heir apparent of the crown of France, the only remaining basket of this priceless vintage was presented to the prince for the nuptial occasion. An unprincipled adventurer by the name of Bouforte, who had secured the position of second steward to the crown, stole twelve bottles of the precious nectar and replaced these with twelve of an inferior article. These twelve bottles he brought with him to America in the year 1790. He communicated the nature of his special treasure to his most trusted friend, Henry Coatway. The cupidity and avarice of the latter overpowered his reason, and he killed Bouforte to secure the wine. The deed was no sooner done than he feared the vengeance of the law, and resolved to fly to distant parts, for a time at least, until the excitement of the murder would die out. Before leaving he buried the twelve bottles with their history far down among the roots of an ancient oak. Fifty years after, on uprooting this same tree, a newly converted Mormon found the treasure and took it with him when he migrated to Utah.

When Brigham Young was made acquainted with the nature of the valuable article contained in the twelve bottles, he informed the owner that God had made him the instrument to find this treasure that he might give it to the head of the church, and forthwith took the vintage.

The wine was in turn stolen from Brigham by an apostate Mormon, who brought it to Montana, and on his death-bed, at the mining camp of Pioneer, he bequeathed to J. A. Murray this wine of such an eventful history, as a testimonial of his gratitude to that gentleman for his having loaned him $500 at one time for the purpose of calling a hand for Julius Levy, by which he took down a pot containing $1,309.

When She Spoke.

She was a sweet-faced, blue-eyed young girl, with great waves of golden hair brushed carelessly back from a noble-looking, snow-white brow. Her ruby lips were full and sweet. Innocence itself was in her great blue eyes Fair and sweet was she in all the purity and guilelessness of her fresh young womanhood.

Two young men had long been watching her with eager interest. Her glorious beauty had enthralled them.

"What a superb girl!" said one. "Never was lily fairer!"

"How I would love to hear her speak!" said the other. "No 'sweet bells jangled' could be like the words she must utter with lips like those, and a face like that!"

She spoke. A friend came down the aisle, and said carelessly—

"A cold day, Miss D——."

The full red lips parted slowly, the beautiful head turned with superb grace, a smile of seraphic sweetness illuminated the noble features; soft and sweet was her artless answer:

"Well, I should smirk to twitter. Cold ain't no name for it!"

FIFTEEN minutes a day devoted to self-improvement will be felt at the end of the year. Good thoughts and carefully gathered experience take up no room, and may be carried about as our companions everywhere, without cost or incumbrance. An economical use of time is the true mode of securing leisure; it unables us to get thro' business and carry it forward, instead of being driven by it. On the other hand, the miscalculation of time involves us in perpetual hurry, confusion, and difficulties, and life becomes a mere shuffle of expedients, usually followed by disaster.

Irish Landlords.

Everything They Own Squeezed From the Poor Peasant.

Dublin would be the most beautiful city in Europe but for two things—its buildings and its people. The aristocracy, so-called, live in tumble-down villas, which, though their white walls sparkle in the sunshine, prove, when approached, to be painted shells surrounded by gardens in ruins. The inhabitants of all these villas are a set of broken-down landlords, who have been compelled to close their country houses and come to town for economy sake; widows living on the dowry paid them by their elder brothers, and mortgaged creditors, who live on the mortgages that they or their ancestors have placed on the land; for in Ireland, with the exception of a few distillers and brewers, who live on the drunkenness of the people, there is no possible mode of obtaining money save from the peasant farmer. The Socialistic axiom that capital is only a useless value, the toil of the worker being unpaid, is in other countries mitigated and almost lost sight of in the multiplicity of avenues through which money must flow before it falls into the pockets of the rich. But in Ireland the direct and rude transfer of money from the horny hands of the peasant to the delicate fingers of the landlord has a horrible smell of slavery.

In Ireland the landlord does absolutely nothing save to grab all the money that the peasant can scrape together. An Irish landlord said: "I have always done, now do and will continue to do just as the other landlords, for it is as impossible for me as the rest of my class to do otherwise; but that does not prevent me from acknowledging the fact that it is a worn out system, at war with the nineteenth century, and something that should be at once abolished. In Ireland every chicken that goes into the pot, every glass of champagne drank, every silk robe that rustles on the street, every rose worn at the ball, is so much squeezed out of the misery of the peasant's hovel. A few years ago this tribute—for that is what it is—was accepted without a murmur, just as feudalism or slavery was accepted long ago in other lands. But now the scales have fallen from the eyes of the nation and the sore is laid bare in all its ugliness, just as if the inner garment had been removed from the natural body, revealing the flesh covered with scars and postules. This wound, which hitherto was only visible to a few, you now see everywhere in the most squalid districts of the city as well as in the most elegant and fashionable quarters.

Whistling and Whistlers.

If a boy is allowed to whistle it will turn his attention in a great degree from the desire to become the possessor of a drum, and if paternal firmness be added, he can be kept satisfied without one until he gets to be sixteen years old when he will strike the cornet period.

Shakespeare was well acquainted with the art. He makes Othello say concerning Desdemona: "If I do not prove her false, I'll whistle her off and let her down the wind a prey to fortune, e'en though her very cries were my dead heart-strings."

Negroes are the best whistlers in the world. Frequently one hears a colored improvisatore whistling the quaintest and sweetest melodies, and with the colored males in general whistling comes as natural as grunting does to a hog.

Men whistle when they are happy, and they whistle when they are sad. When you see a carpenter or a house-painter pushing a plane or slapping on the paint and whistling a lively air at the same time, set him down as a man who pays his debts, is cheerful at home and never whips his children.

When a man is sad he whistles in a doleful tone. Nine times out of ten he won't choose a dismal air, but he will whistle a lively tune, a hornpipe or a negro minstrel end song. And he will draw the melody in and out between his lips in a way to draw tears from all listeners. Sometimes a man accomplishes the same result when he is cheerful and trying to whistle real good.

Girls in general whistle in a sort of jerky, disconnected, jim-jam sort of way, and groan mildly between the notes. They'd better let whistling alone.

Vienna Girls.

The system carried out in Vienna for educating girls is entirely worthy of note, says the Buffalo Courier. They are kept at their studies until they are fifteen years of age. Then they go through a course of teaching in the pantry and kitchen, under some member of the family, sometimes under trained cooks, for a year or two years. Thus they learn to do everything themselves, and to know the value of things long before they commence housekeeping on their own account; and though they may never be required to cook a dinner, they become independent of cooks and servants. The Austrian women are the most affectionate wives and mothers. They are as accomplished as any English governess, are as witty in society as a Parsian, and are among the most beautiful women in Europe.

THE FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

The latest returns of the Congressional elections are much more favorable to the Democrats and, unless reversed by official count, give the party twenty-five majority in the next House of Representatives. The gains not heretofore credited to them are the Second and Fifth California districts and the Second North Carolina. In the Seventh Ohio, which had been reported carried by Little (Rep.), the official count gives three majority to Campbell (Dem). In the disputed Tenth Illinois district the face of the returns shows a majority for Post (Rep.) over Worthington (Dem.) Mr. Carlisle is re-elected by a majority of 786. The Congressional table, as now arranged, stands as follows:

FORTY-NINTH CONGRESS States.	D.	R.	FIFTIETH CONGRESS. States.	D.	R.

THE ELECTION IN OTHER STATES.

New Jersey elected a democratic governor with a plurality of 6120. The democrats have a majority of five in the House of Representatives and the Republicans three majority in the Senate.

New York gave Rufus W. Peckham, for Judge of the court of Appeals a democratic majority of 9631 The next legislature will consist of 166 Democrats, 153 Republicans and 5 labor representatives. New York city elected a democratic mayor by about 22,000 plurality.

Wisconsin Republicans elected their governor. The congressional delegation remains unchanged. The legislature will have a republican majority of 20 to 25.

In Connecticut the Democrats have a plurality, but as a direct majority is required for an election, the republican legislature will decide the result.

Ohio went republican. Frank Hurd, the congressional condidate was defeated. Campbell Democrat, is elected by 3 majority.

In Illinois congressman Morrison was defeated and the republican plurality for state treasurer is about 25,000.

Indiana went republican by a small majority.

Iowa's republican majority on the state ticket amounts to about 11,000. Eight republicans and three democrats were elected to congress.

In Kansas the republican candidate for governor received a majority of about 37,000, and all the congressmen are republican.

Nebraska has a republican majority of 20,000.

Nevada elected the entire Republican state ticket.

Alabama's 8 congressmen and Arkansas, 5 are all democratic.

Colorado elected a republican governor.

In Delaware and Arizona the democrats were victorious.

Florida elected two democratic congressmen.

Massachusetts has a republican governor.

Michigan is claimed by both parties for the state ticket. The legislature is republican.

Nebraska and Nevada went republican.

Missouri has the usual democratic majorities.

The grain markets have been speculative, in a mild sense last week and prices have undergone slight fluctuations, but the rounding out shows a falling off. This cannot last, unless all the signs of the times are astray, at least so far as wheat is concerned. The wheat crop of the world is short, and the surplus from past seasons must be called upon, to eke out the supply. This must bring an appreciation in prices, and the clear-sighted are holding on to their wheat. The drop of the past few days was partly owing to the development of an unexpected visible supply, which was taken quick advantage of by the bears.

THE U. S. Dispensatory and the Science of Chemistry justify the assertion that for tonic, diaphoretic and expectorant properties, no combination of remedies can be devised to equal in power and efficacy Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine. It is a safe and reliable standby in case of croup and whooping-cough. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

AFTER DIPHTHERIA.—Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

—FOR Cholera, Diarrhaoe, Dysentary, Inflamation of the Bowels or Colic. Take internally from five to ten drops of Darbys Prophylatic Fluid in a tablespoonful of water every hour or two till improvement takes place. There is no danger in taking more of it and more frequently if occasion requires. In chronic cases, or when the stomach refuses to retain anything else, use injections of the Fluid and water. We have never known a case that did not readily yield to such treatment, and it saved the lives of many.

ONLY A STEP.—When catarrh has progressed to a certain extent, it is only a step to that terribly fatal disease, consumption. If you have catarrh, even slightly, it is a terrible mistake to allow it to continue its course unchecked. If you will only read, you will find conclusive reasons why you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, in the statements of many people who have been completely cured of this disease in its most severe forms. Send for book containing abundant evidence to C. I. Hood & Co., proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, Lowell, Mass.

DR. SAWBONES says that the surest way to take a cold is to be always hugging the stove. Young man remember this, and when you go to see your girl on Sunday night don't spend your time hugging the stove; but if you do get a cold Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine can be relied upon to cure you.

Miscellaneous News.

COL. ROBT. G. INGERSOLL is affected with a throat trouble similar to that which killed Gen. Grant and is regarded by his physicians as incurable.

AN order has been received by the Lehigh Valley Railroad shops at Packerton to build 100 Tiffin refrigerator cars. These are to be built during the winter and are to be put on the road next spring. This insures the Packerton men steady work during the coming winter.

Coal Demand Active.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 5.—The demand for anthracite coal continues active from all points except the east. Many thousands of tons are yet to be delivered in fulfillment of old orders and at prices lower than those now prevailing. The demand from the west is greater than the supply, and the line and city trades are active. Supplies at Port Richmand are 25,000 tons against 35,000 tons at the same time last week, and this has been nearly all sold.

Found $59 in an Old Tin Kettle.

LEBANON, Pa., Nov. 5.—On the farm of Rev. Hiram Gibbs, north of White Oak, in Penn township, Lancaster county is an old tenant house occupied by Jacob Shreiner, an old bachelor, who lives alone. Frequntly he says he heard peculiar noises about the place at night, and he concluded it was an omen that money was hidden somewhere. He proceeded to the garret and began to loosen the boards under the rafters, when he was rewarded by finding an old tin kettle containing $59 in old silver coins and copper pennies. It is supposed to have been placed there by the grandfather of Rev. Hiram Gibble, who years ago lived in the house.

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme care with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in the unequalled good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"I suffered from wakefulness and low spirits, and also had eczema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have received so much benefit that I am very grateful, and I am always glad to speak a good word for this medicine." MRS. J. S. SNYDER, Pottsville, Penn.

Purifies the Blood

Henry Biggs, Campbell Street, Kansas City, had scrofulous sores all over his body for fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured him.

Wallace Buck, of North Bloomfield, N. Y., suffered eleven years with a terrible varicose ulcer on his leg, so bad that he had to give up business. He was cured of the ulcer, and also of catarrh, by —Mr. Christ, an experienced architect of Milton, Pa., tarried a few days in town, the guest of John Kerstetter, Jr., on Penn Street. While here Mr. Christ went a gunning with John but did not meet with any success.

D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

—Mrs. Lizzie B. Kurzenknabe, of Harrisburg, came up on Friday morning to attend the funeral of her brother's child. She is spending several days in town with her parents. Lizzie still appreciates "Home, sweet Home."

—Love, put on your bridal veil and we will go to D. S. Kauffman & Co's reliable store in Millheim and save money by buying our goods there. They have anything you want and sell cheaper than any other store in the county.

READ.—The Aaronsburg Meat Market will supply parties who need larger quantities of beef for butchering time with quarters and halves and sell it as cheap, if not cheaper than anyone else. They will also deliver the beef to the house if so desired.

—Last Saturday Dr. Lee, of Madisonburg, was in town and had along with him his five brothers, who were visitors at his house at the time. Neither of them are as little or light weight as the doctor, but all of them, we are told, are a jolly set.

—H. E Duck's brick building on Main street is about completed and is an ornament to that section of the borough. We did not learn whether he has an occupant for his store room on the ground floor yet but presume it will be rented before long.

MEAT FOR WINTER.—Moyer & Kreamer's meat market on Main street will be kept open during the coming winter and persons wishing to buy large quantities of beef for butchering time will do well to apply at their place of business before buying elsewhere.

A SIGN in Cleveland reads "Ice Kream Sallune" which is probably the worst cold spell of the season; but for the worst spell of cold Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is the best cure you will be able to find.

—The Methodist church of this place received their new bell the other day. Its tone is in Bb and it produces a very clear and melodious sound. The intervals between the four church bells in town are just right now to make splendid harmony when ringing together.

—C. Woodling's house, Penn street, occupied by Harvey Confer is undergoing a general renovation. It is being reroofed, weatherboarded and painted. In fact when done it will look as good as new. Improvements are beginning to be of almost daily occurrence in our town.

NOTICE.—Persons having subscribed certain sums of money to the Evangelical church at the dedication of said church are requested to make immediate payment as the subscriptions are overdue. The amounts are payable to W. R. Henney or D. L. Zerby.

Building Committee.

ACCIDENT.—Henry, a son of John M. Road, of North street, was playing with a loaded pistol last Monday, when the weapon discharged and lodged the bullet in the palm of the boy's left hand. Henry suffers considerable pain. A physician was called on Tuesday to extricate the ball, but the operation proved unsuccessful.

—It is generally observed that our borough council must do something with the alley crossing back of Musser & Smith's hardware this fall. If left in its present condition it will very likely be the cause of serious falls and consequent damages to be paid by the borough. Better not wait to "lock the stable after the horse is stolen."

—The cold snap which surprised us on Sunday and Monday put a temporary stop to out door work of which there is a vast amount to be done yet. It is to be hoped however that several weeks of moderate weather and a week's rain is back yet. It would certainly be a calamity if it should winter in with the present low state of the water.

—About twenty invitations have been issued for a party which is to be held at the residence of Michael Ulrich in honor of the 17th anniversary of the birthday of their daughter Miss Alice, next Thursday evening, Nov. 18th.

—It is amazing to see the fine stock of groceries in J. W. Stover's store on Main street. And it will be still more of a surprise when you hear of the low prices at which he sells his goods. It will pay you to deal with Stover.

—Musser & Alexander, our marble firm, erected a fine monument on the grave of the late Mrs. T. Benton Ulrich, at Penn Hall, on Monday last. It is manufactured of foreign marble, and is a fair specimen of mechanical skill.

—H. D. Snyder, who has been working in Hartman's foundry at the turning lathe, will vacate his position and Wm. M. Hartman will take his place. Mr. Snyder expects to make sale of his property, on Saturday, Nov. 20th at 1 o'clock, p. m.

—Friday's Bellefonte Daily News gives an account of a Hebrew wedding which occurred at the residence of ex-Burgess A. Sternburg on Thursday of last week, at which time that gentleman's oldest daughter, Cecilia, was joined in holy wedlock with Saml. H. Leichten, of Houtzdale, Pa.

—The newly elected members of the legislature already vis it the state capital to select quarters for the coming session. We noticed in Tuesday's Patriot that Hon. John A. Woodward, one of the representatives from this county was in Harrisburg for that purpose.

CHOICE CLOVERSEED FOR SALE.—The undersigned has a large quantity of extra cloverseed on hand and for sale. Persons in need of this article will please call on me at my residence in Haines township or address me at Aaronsburg, Pa. W. W. BOWER.

—J. Israel, representing Jos. Netter & Co's wholesale clothing house, Philadelphia, occupied the sample room of the National Hotel a few days this week. When Israel unpacks his large trunks full of the best clothing there is little space left in the room for other samples. But he never fails to make some good sales.

—Owing to the general excitement which prevailed on Wednesday of last week when the afternoon train from Bellefonte arrived at Coburn bringing along the latest election news, we failed to make a note of the large bunch of pheasants which C. K. Sober, the crack shot, had shot during a day's hunt. We believe he had a string of about 20 of the finest specimens.

—It is whispered that Mrs. President Cleveland wil not appear in Washington society this winter for special and very good reasons best known to herself. This may seem a little mysterious at first, but upon second thought it seems quite natural. In the mean time the Washington ladies feel somewhat sad at the idea of losing their leader and anticipate a dull season.

DID it ever occur to you, thoughtful and prudent reader, that Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine must be an article of real merit, or how could the manufacturer ever be able to advertise "money refunded to all dissatisfied purchasers."

—Capt. O. W. Van Valin, of Coburn, spent several days in town this week to to see to the completion of a couple dozen drafts (more or less) of his distillery. These drafts must go to the proper department at Washington and must be approved before he can go ahead with the manufacture of "Van Valin's best." John Kerstetter, Jr., of Penn street, is his draughtsman and did some real fine work.

—A PREFACE is something spoken or written to introduce a general subject; and I wish only to say by way of preface--for I will have more to tell later on--that the Journal Store is now in first class trim, nice and clean as a new pin. For several weeks past I have been adding to my general stock of goods and will continue to do so for a while yet. I hope for a large trade during the coming Holiday season and expect to be fully prepared for it. My old patrons as well as the general public are most cordially invited to call for anything they need in my line, at the old place, No. 20, Penn Street, Millheim, Pa. B. O. DEININGER.

BOROUGH SCHOOL REPORT.—J. F. Keller, teacher of the grammar department reports the following for the month ending Nov. 8th: No of pupils enrolled—18 males, 27 females; Average attendance—13 males, 19 females, total 32; Per cent. of attendance—82 males, 77 females, total 79.

M. C. Gephart, teacher of the primary department reports for the month ending Oct. 29th: No of pupils enrolled, 34 males, 37 females, total 71; Average attendance 30 males, 31 females, totol 61; Per cent. of attendance, 91 males, 91 females, total 91.

D. G. Smith, teacher of the North street School, reports for the month ending Oct. 29th: No of males 22, females 23, total 45; Average attendance males 19, females 21, total 40; Per cent. of attendance males 90, females 94, total 92. Visitors, F M Fisher, C F Musser.

—The town council had a regular meeting last Thursday evening when all the orders due persons having worked on the Main street job were passed. Complaint was brought in by citizens of North street about the iron railing around J. W. Snook's entrance to cellar and council voted to notify Mr. Snook to remove the railing within 60 days and close said entrance with a substantial trap door. A crossing was ordered to be built at F. Catherman's alley, of plank. It was also voted that the street commissioner repair Mill street where most necessary, the cost not to exceed $25.

—The frequent discovery of chunks of stone containing mineral species upon our mountains put it beyond a doubt that there are valuable beds of metallic ores of some kind in our immediate vicinity. Only a few days ago Squire Reifsnyder brought a piece to town which he had found on his mountain land and which upon closer examination showed substances which very much resembled metal. We are almost positive that a thorough investigation by some one who has the means to pursue the matter will at some future day reveal a vast amount of wealth in these mountains. The only thing wanting is some one to start the business.

QUICK WORK.—On Friday morning Ed. Schenke, clerk of the National Hotel of this place, noticed an advertisement in the Bellefonte Daily News of a horse and buggy which had been stolen from a gentleman in Huntingdon, Pa., last week, offering a reward of $50 for the recovery. Mr. Shenke remembered having seen a horse of the description given pass through town several days before and at once proceeded to Woodward in company with Henry Brown to get on the track of the thief. He succeeded in getting the necessary information from the Messrs. Guiswite, who had bought the whole outfit and traded the horse off to a Mr. Beaver of near Mifflinburg. On Saturday morning landlord Rook continued the chase and found the horse at New Berlin. Assisted by an officer of the law he took possession of the stolen animal, and had it locked up in Deckert's hotel in Mifflinburg. On his return he telegraphed to the owner and on Monday brought the horse to Millheim. In the meantime Mr. Ertle, of Jacksonville, who had bought the buggy, returned the same to Mr. Rook and the owner, Mr. Charles Port of Huntingdon, came to town on Tuesday and recovered his property.

Neighboring News.

AARONSBURG.

Sausage making time is fast approaching.

Last Saturday night and Sunday we had the first snowfall of this season.

W. H. Philips has gone to Philadelphia to buy his winter stock of general merchandise. He will as usual stop on his way at Shamokin to look after his business interests there.

Postmaster Thomas Yearick and wife have gone to Phila. to visit their sons, Messrs. Harry and Gross Yearick. Asst. P. M., Elijah Burd, will have charge of Mrs. Yearick's confectionery and grocery in connection with the Post office during their absence.

Rev. Deitzler and family returned from their two weeks' visit to Snyder Co. The report having had a very pleasant time visiting among their former parishoners.

Harvey Crouse is minus the little finger of his right hand, the result of an unexpected discharge of the mill shaft cannon they put to use in ratifying the election of Gen. Jas A. Beaver as Governor of Pennsylvania and the balance of the state ticket. Harvey very narrowly escaped having his entire hand blown off.

On last Sabbath in the Lutheran Sunday school the announcement was made that the school will hold a Christmas festival on next Christmas being on the evening of Friday Dec. 24th, 1886. The announcement was made so that all connected with the school may prepare themselves to perform their duties which will be assigned them.

Mr. Hines, at present occupying the John Russell property, has bought the John Stover property situated about two and a half miles below Aaronsburg. Mr. Stover, we are informed, bought a small tract of land in the yicinity of Rebersburg, Pa.

Inquiry has frequently been made by members of Al. Stover's singing class why the same is not continued and concluded. Come now Prof. let's hear from you.

A Mr. Krider and lady from Ill., are visiting at D. H. Lenker's, while Mr. Dr. Luther Holloway, of Salona, and the Dr's sister Mrs. Bogle, of Ohio, are the guests of Henry Crouse on North 2nd St. ANOTHER.

SPRING MILLS.

The creamery is in successful operation at present. They manufacture the genuine gilt edged butter.

S. R. Gettig, formerly of Coburn, has moved to this place and has accepted a situation in Grenoble's store.

Cal. Mallory has also moved to this place and has accepted a situation in the Spring Mills Creamery.

Mrs. Rev. J. M. Evans is visiting friends in this vicinity.

W. H. Hettinger's horses got loose in the stable one night last week and one of them got so badly kicked that it is feared ne can not recover. *

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

SMITH TOWN.

Snow and mud.

J. H. Frank was over to Nittany Valley and bought five head of cattle.

Squire Duck sold one of his cows for $60.

Next Thursday, Nov. 11, a jury of three men will locate a public road leading from Henry Mark's along the mountain to George Schuyler, thence south to the turnpike.

Benj. Frankenberger had a lot of carpenters at work all last week, making improvements about his home.

On Friday last a big fire broke out on Brush mountain and burned several hundred acres of timberland. A party of 15 men outened it on Friday night.

The bridges on the company road that leads to the mountain are in a very bad condition. Several horses have already tramped through the plank. The foreman of the road ought to attend to the bridges.

Miss Alice Bierly went home last Thursday to nurse a very sick brother, who was badly hurt by a fall from the hay mow.

W. F. Smith traded horses again, and we wouldn't be surprised if both parties got bamboosled.

Henry Keen sold five horses and bought six others since.

Mrs. Ney, of Aaronsburg, is spending this in our midst. SUMBO.

COBURN.

The election is now a thing of the past and all hands are glad that it is over, although not all are satisfied with the result, which could not be.

A few of our Republican friends tried to get up a jollification one evening but could not raise the enthusiasm. With a crowd of small boys and a small fire burning they created very little excitement.

Squire Gettig removed his family to Rising Springs on Thursday last, where he will engage in the store business, unless the distillery starts up shortly.

Mr. F. P. Barker intends going out of business shortly and will move on his recent purchase, the Fowler farm.

On Saturday morning last we noticed a party from Millheim driving to the train in great haste and wearing a solemn countenance and consequental air. We heard some one remark, "Where's Parker going and what's up?" "Oh, nothing, only going down the road." He returned in the evening all smiles and we heard him say, "Oh I was there and got him in fine style." Got what? "Why the stolen horse." Good for you, Capt.

The new bridge at Greenbriar was completed last week and turned over to the county.

The mill property of Mr. Kersteter at Coburn, we understand, has been leased by Messrs. Wm & Henry Whitmer, with the intention of putting up a steam sawmill before long. This is a step in the right direction.

The hunters are all having good luck and quite a number of deer have been slaughtered.

Rumor has it that when the fall time table comes out which will be soon, we are to have two passenger trains and two freight trains a day each way through to Bellefonte. This would be a great convenience to the traveling public.

Mrs. W. H. Kreamer is spending a few days visiting in her old home, Mifflinburg. VALE.

REBERSBURG.

Rev. Lenhart will administer the Lord's supper on next Sunday at 10 o'clock, a. m., in the Lutheran church of this place.

A donation party called at the house of T. M. Gramley, where C. O. Mallory and family spent the night previous to moving to Spring Mills. Many nice presents were given to the Mallory family and all present enjoyed themselves very much. Cal leaves many friends behind who wish him success in his new position at Spring Mills.

Jno. Sholl is building a new bridge across the creek on his farm, the old bridge having become unsafe for crossing.

J. W. Snook has at present a number of men at work building a board fence on his farm along the public road. This is quite an improvement and other farmers should do the same.

Wm. Kreamer and Jno. Wolf were off again to a horse sale. They went to Hickory Corner, Northumberland Co., and on their road stopped off at Freeburg, Snyder county., where they struck another sale. They returned with five fine Iowa horses.

One day last week while Dan. Wolf, who is employed by Wm. Kreamer, was in the act of making a wedge he missed his aim and cut a deep gash on the back of his hand, severing the principle lead of the index finger.

Last week J. C. Morris, the teacher of the Gramley school employed Ira Spangler to teach his school for a week while Morris delivered fruit trees for which he had taken orders during the summer months.

On last Thursday Jno. Spangler moved into his renovated house and feels very comfortable now.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

FAULTLESS FAMILY MEDICINE

"I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for many years, having made it my only Family Medicine. My mother before me was very partial to it. It is a safe, good and reliable medicine for any disorder of the system, and if used in time is a great preventive of sickness. I often recommend it to my friends, and shall continue to do so.

"Rev. James M. Rollins,
"Pastor M. E. Church, So. Fairfield, Va."

TIME AND DOCTORS' BILLS SAVED by always keeping Simmons Liver Regulator in the house.

"I have found Simmons Liver Regulator the best family medicine I ever used for anything that may happen, have used it in Indigestion, Colic, Diarrhœa, Biliousness, and found it to relieve immediately. After eating a hearty supper, if, on going to bed, I take about a teaspoonful, I never feel the effects of the supper eaten.

Mountain Sam's Dogs.

An old trapper and hunter, known as "Mountain Sam," is doing a land office business killing huge mountain sheep for their heads and horns. These he ships to New York to fill orders which he is constantly receiving, and there they are mounted. Sam's best customers are wealthy Englishmen. For many years "Mountain Sam" has buried himself in the most remote recesses of the Big Horn mountains Sam rounds up the wild sheep with dogs.

His pack number twenty-five head, and they are a pure cross of the blood hound and bulldog. Mountain born and bred, these noble animals add to the strength and sagacity of their blood-strains a marvelous endurance and activity. No snow depth, no roughness of trail, no steepness of precipice, no loftiness of peak, no remoteness of locality can stop the mountain dog when on the track of the mountain sheep. The pack works in an organized way when the track of a band of sheep is struck. The dogs break into little bunches, and wide and careful circuits are made. The closely pressed sheep are hurried toward a common centre, and they will soon be bunched with twenty-five staunch dogs, crests erect and tails wagging, moving about them in an endless and eager circle.

The pack has been known to bunch two hundred and fifty herd of sheep, and to hold their watch and guard for over six hours awaiting the coming of their master, who has been kept back by the difficulties lying in his path. It sometimes occurs that the dogs bring the game together on a spot that is utterly inaccessible to human feet. Then the hunter gives his dogs notice of the fact by a peculiarly shrill and piercing shout. The pack at once dash into the midst of the sheep, seize and slay the largest, and by dint of rolling, tumbling from crag to crag, from declivity to declivity, bring the carcasses within reach of their master.

He Had to Give it Up.

Patiently she sat and waited for his footfall. His footfall was busy filling engagements at other points. A tear trickled from her eye and burst into countless sparkling atoms, as it fell on the mantle which hung gracefully from her shoulders. The gaslight flickered dismally in the dim hall. She let it flicker and heeded it not. The policeman's club struck the curbstone on the next block with a hollow sound, and she started in terror. What if—oh, sickening thought! But no—George was always fly enough to take a cab after he had finished going out with the boys.

At last he came.

"Where have you been so long, George?" she asked.

He scarcely seemed to hear her. For several minutes he stood motionless, but his face wore a troubled expression. At length he spoke these words:

"My—hic—dear, I hash ter give it up. I've got 'er poorest mem'ry ever shaw. Ashk me shumphin' easy. I'll fin' out fer you to—hic—morrow from shom of ozzher—hic—fellersh. Good-night."

Automatic Sewing Machine Co.

72 West 23d St., New York, N. Y.

We invite special attention to our NEW PATENT AUTOMATIC TENSION MACHINE, making precisely the same stitch as the Wilcox & Gibbs, and yet, if not preferred to the Wilcox & Gibbs Automatic Tension Machine, can be returned any time within 30 days and money refunded. But what is more remarkable still, we never knew a woman willing to do her own family sewing on a shuttle machine after having tried our new Patent AUTOMATIC.

Even Shoe Manufacturers find it best suited to their work—its elastic seams are more durable. Truly—Automatic Sewing Machines are fast superseding shuttle machines, and it is no use to deny it. Truth is mighty and does prevail. Shuttle Machines have seen their best days.
